

MEYER'S Grand Reorganization Sale.

THE back of winter is broken—the cold weather gone. It's just between seasons, and the winter goods must go—prices cannot be thought of—profit we don't ask. If winter buying is late, spring buying is early. So we mark the goods at prices that seem reckless. Spring buyers, you'll miss a great money-saving opportunity if you miss this sale. The future casts its shadow before it and foretells great money-saving opportunities. Again, we've gone through this store's stock and put lightning prices on the profitless goods—given 'em the farewell-good-by push that'll send them out of sight of this store and scatter them broadcast over the town.

There's no stemming this tidal wave of slaughtered prices.—The winter goods we don't want—the spring trade we must have. We rise to the emergency, and CUT, SLASH, CHOP our way out of it.

BASEMENT BARGAINS

Needs that would cost you half as much more—twice as much; depended where you bought, at ridiculous prices, just because we don't intend to continue this line. You already know the story of our purchase of entire store, and their sale—still there's plenty left for selection, and we've gone through the stock and put the prices lower than ever—divided them up in tables of 5, 10, 15, 25, and 50c. Come and look the tables over—may be you'll see something you need.
